ABSTRACT

The article gives an overview of the transactions recorded on a cash basis in the Monthly Treasury Statements 2008 and 2009 prepared and published by the Treasury of the Federal Finance Office.

The main reasons behind the deficits of these two years are analysed and the link with the official Treasury debt is also made.

Mainly in 2008 the effects of the financial global crisis influenced the level of the financial needs of the Treasury, since it was obliged to recapitalising financial institutions in order to safeguard the financial system. In 2009 this financial crisis had his fallout on the economic situation by increased fiscal stimuli and declining fiscal revenues.
